

No Socks to Wash (Paperback)

By Doreen Reed

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English. Brand new Book. This is a collection of 16 amusing poems telling tales of everyday life. "No socks to wash" is about the joys of being a single female. "A valentine near miss" "Mean Dean" and "Prince Charming" are tales of very brief romances. "Mother knows best" "Why did they have a pocket" "What is sex Daddy?" "Let spiders run alive" well, these titles speak for themselves. "Japanese porcelain" a simple guide to what marks to look for. "My address" A friend gave my name and address instead of her own, what a mistake that proved to be, well for her anyway. "Tea with Auntie Pat" My auntie Pat is a dear lady, but I preferred not to have refreshments at her house, until I realised how I was upsetting her. "BOGOFs" Is of course Buy one get one free, my friend certainly did this. "That's nice" If you have ever been in the situation where someone bores you to tears with tales of their wonderful life, then this tells of a polite way to deal with it. "My plea to my feathered friends" I love seeing birds in my garden, I feed them and make sure...
